Possibility That Canada May Balance Budget This Year

For First Time Since 1930 Revenues May Be Sufficient to 1946 to Meet Expenditure

Kenneth R. Wilson, writing in the Financial Post, sees the possibility of Canada balancing its budget for the first time since 1930. The first five months have brought a surplus of 150 millions, but there is the possibility that returns may not be so high as the year rounds off. Another point is the loans and advances of 800 millions to Britain and other governments.

Hon. J. L. Olsley in June estimated the 1946-47 deficit at $80 millions, but the government is doing better than expected.

Income tax and special receipts are running above average. "Social" receipts are at present running far ahead of estimates and should continue so to do. The biggest factor here is war asset sales which had brought in $92 millions in the first five months and are currently "grossing" $20 millions or more monthly. It would appear that receipts from war assets alone might run to $200 millions for the entire year.

Five-month figures also show that sales tax, customs and excise duties are well ahead of average. Expenditures to date are well below estimated figures. This is partly "seasonal"; many costs and departmental bills don't begin rolling in until just before the deadline next March. But even so, it looks as if there will be substantial savings as compared with budget estimates.

The big spender for the year will undoubtedly be Veterans' Affairs, which has rolled up almost $300 millions to date, or 45% of even the enlarged and supplementary estimate for the full year. Family allowance costs are about as expected. Interest charges are less than average but there is little question that the entire gross figures of $465 millions for the year will have been spent by next March.

With five-twelfths of the year gone only one-third of the estimated budget has been spent. Added to this there will be further savings by reason of the ending of the milk subsidy. Once the provincial agreements to expire there will be substantial cash refunds to be made to the provinces but the dollar bulk of these subsidies do not fall due until next year.

Apart from budget revenue expenditure, there is the important item of "loans and advances" which Mr. Hsley estimated at $1 billion for 1946-47. Bulk of this money represents commitments under the British line of credit and export credits to Netherlands, Belgium, France and other countries.

Under the theory of cyclical balancing of budgets, 1946-47 is the kind of year when the Government should show a handsome surplus without raising taxpayer hopes for a further slash in tax rates. It is also pointed out that the tax cuts announced last June do not become operative until January and therefore are reflected in only minor degree in the 1946-47 accounts. They also point to a rapidly increasing government debt as long as we are making loans and advances outside the regular budget.

EXPORT MARKETS

WORD that all price controls may be abandoned before long is viewed with mixed feelings by the public. But in Ottawa there is a growing feeling that these controls, which worked admirably in wartime, are outliving their usefulness. It is reported also that the government is becoming embarrassed by the accumulating stories that Canadian shortages in needed goods are due to large sales on export markets where there are no such price controls as prevail on the domestic market.

Undoubtedly the needy Canadian public does suspect that the reason there are such shortages on domestic shelves is because the manufacturers are finding much more profitable markets elsewhere, and are taking advantage of that market to as great an extent as possible, regardless of home requirements. It is all very well to seek export markets, but not at the sacrifice of Canadian needs. If controls are removed, however, there seems no doubt that home prices will rocket for a time. Those in favor of removal argue that this may go far in minimizing the endless labor strikes which have so crippled production.

This brings up one of the reasons why farmers have been seeking fact finding boards. They have been asking for some time for a release of cold figures on Canada's export trade. They know that wheat exports are going to Britain at less than world price. They wonder if the other exporters from Canada are expected to make good fellows of themselves to the same extent.

When the farmer cannot buy home produced shingles which he desperately needs because the shingles are probably being shipped out of this country, he naturally wonders if the lumber man is taking the same cut on his exported goods that the wheat grower is expected to take on his wheat. Similarly with shirts and soap and underwear and all the scores of shortages which Canadians are expected to submit to amiably because the world outside needs them worse. He wonders, and he has excuse for wondering, because, according to press reports, "it is only by manufacturing for markets in which no price ceilings exist that Canadian producers are able to make a part of their output available to the home market." That seems to be the answer.

Another question which farmers ask is whether the price concessions which the wheat grower is making are appreciated. Are they going to be remembered, ten or fifteen years from now, to make them of long-term value. When this question was put at a local meeting to a Canadian delegate recently returned from a food conference in England, the reply was not particularly reassuring. He did not think British people generally seemed to realize they were getting cheap wheat from Canada, and he doubted if the high regard in which Canada was held had any tieup with cheap wheat. Nor did he hear criticism of the price United States was charging. The only comment he had heard from British farmers was that an avalanche of cheap food from Canada might influence unfavorably standards of British farm returns.

There are a great many angles on this pursuit of export markets. Will the removal of price controls send wages and prices spiralling? Is the manufacturer selling on the export market on the same terms as the wheat grower? Should there be unrestricted export of goods which are critically needed in Canada? If prices jump on manufactured goods for home consumption what about the relative price of wheat for home consumption?

HOUSES BUT NO PEOPLE

SCARCITY of houses in large cities, and even in the smaller towns, is daily headline news in the larger papers. It is being approached constantly from different angles and different sets of circumstances, but the theme of the day is housing. And a reflection of this tragic domestic need may be found in other columns of daily news—in the growing list of divorce cases, and in cases of domestic unhappiness and cleavage.

One local resident, after driving over the countryside, made the observation that in the midst of the housing shortage there are an increasing number of empty houses in rural areas. Many of these are good houses, weather worthy, commodious and in very livable condition. They are empty because the land has been sold to a non-resident owner. Perhaps he may be a big land owner living nearby whose ambition is more acreage, and whose machine equipment is geared to immense holdings. Or he may be a long distance operator, someone who has absolutely no place nor part in the community. In any event the new owner has no need of the house so it stands idle and lifeless adding to the lonely atmosphere of a sparsely inhabited country.

It is one of the ironies of the day that there are not enough houses where they are most vitally needed, but there are large numbers of houses, if they could all be assembled, scattered all over the countryside.

While individual freedom to acquire land and property is prized as a basic freedom this may be carried much too far for public good. At the present time when desirable land for veterans is of great general interest, there is a tendency to view critically the acquisition of great areas of good farm land under one ownership. This criticism may yet come to government attention, and may develop in a curb on the farm acreage that any one man should own.

Certainly nothing is more destructive to the color and flavor of community living than empty houses. This is particularly true of communities which once were well populated, with families growing up and homes throbbing with life. To see such homes standing deserted is much sadder than the virgin state before homes had been built. It seems a reflection on the countryside, though this is quite a false impression. The land no doubt is good or it would not have attracted the covetous eye.

This surplus of housing where it is doing no good is one thing deserving consideration. But besides that is the depopulation of the farm country through individual ownership of vast property. How far should this go unchecked?

millions of better men to death or torture.

Pertinent Topics

It is too bad that so many American elections are to take place early in November, but it will be good to have over. If it were not for them President Truman would not have asked Wallace's speech designed to bag the Leftist vote, which he had afterwards to explain to the point of repudiation. It was not for these elections. Wallace would still be in the Cabinet and Truman would not have acquired a reputation for stupid blundering. If it were not for the elections he would not have broken with the British government on the Palestine issue. His party needs the Hebrew as well as the anti-British vote. This is "a good enough Morgan until after the election."

That the Jewish vote is of consequence in New York is indicated by Governor Dewey's reaction to the President's bid. "Why only 100,000 Jewish immigrants a year into Palestine? Why not double that?" he asked without giving any more information than the President as to what his country will do to help the British implement the bribes. This competitive bidding increases British embarrassment. Agreement between the contenders as to the size of the bribe is, however, as difficult of attainment as one between the Arabs and the Jews who are on the auction block.

President Truman should make inquiries rather than statements. He sometimes forgets that he is from Missouri.

Wonder if the Nuremberg criminals who felt so badly about losing their own lives ever gave a thought to the carelessness and abandon with which they flung

There is a soft-hearted prelate in England and a soft-headed Senator in the United States who admit they should all have been allowed to live although they know of better men going to the gallows who could be set free by the pardoning power. Three of the men tried have been acquitted, but all they can be sure of now is that they are safer in jail, the only place where they can enjoy some measure of social security.

The majority voted down Molotov's demand that the Anglo-Americans set a specific date for getting out of the Trieste area. Thus did he pay a compliment to the western democracies. A specific date from them could be relied upon even by the men who welched on a specific date to evacuate Iran.

If there was a considerable and organized Arab vote in the United States it is conceivable that Mr. Truman would go to so much trouble to gain the Jewish vote.

The government controller of steel has come out of his seclusion. When Dosco said it could not pay the new wage, Mr. Kilbourne, saying the government was in control, and instructed the plant to resume operation as soon as possible. He also remarked that he would put some pep into Dosco. He knew he could do it for Dosco is in Nova Scotia and so is the Finance Minister. The pep was administered by way of an increased subsidy provided by the government to be paid by the taxpayers. Difficulties of this sort are easily ironed out if you have the iron and can apply the heat.

Dr. Rabinovitch has a reputation as a scholar and as a medical man who served with distinction in the war. He undertook to say publicly that the Zionist movement is a political one and that its operation in Palestine are fraught with grave consequences to Britain and to his race. For this he has been pilloried by five Rabbis. They tell him to stick to medicine instead of dabbling with great questions on which he is not qualified to speak, because he is only a layman.

Now what can possibly clothe Rabbis with authority on such questions that a doctor cannot acquire by education and travel? We have other religious leaders in Canada who dearly love to meet on week days in study groups to discuss world questions and pass resolutions critical of their own country, the British Commonwealth and its institutions but they have never yet denied that doctors, plumbers, carpenters and other occupational groups have similar privileges. They would not take the arrogant attitude the Rabbis took even though Dr. Rabinovitch takes the side of Britain in the controversy.

In one of his letters from Russia now appearing in the press, John Strohm describes a collective farm dinner given him: "A long towel," he says, "rested across our laps, a sort of community napkin." It almost tempts one to observe that it usurped the function of a Soviet.

Hon. Vincent Massey realizes the difficulty of reconciling our views with that of Russia and therefore asks us to exercise patience. He apparently thinks we can eat our cake and have it. It was while we were exercising patience that Russia gained a foothold in Iran that puts her in a position to tax our patience still further. Anthony Eden offers like counsel. But Mr. Bevin will no doubt reflect that it is easy for the butterfly upon the road to preach patience to the toad beneath the harrow.

Gift Parcels For Britain

(U.K. Information Bureau) In view of recent publicity about alleged seizure of gift parcels from overseas, the Board of Trade issue the following statement:

Under the import of goods (control) order, all goods brought into this country must have an import license. A concession is, however, made concerning unsolicited gift parcels.

Under this concession such gift parcels are allowed in without an import license providing they fulfil the main requirements that not more than one per month is sent and that no parcels total more than 11 pounds gross weight and do not contain more than seven pounds of foodstuffs or more than two pounds of any one foodstuff.

Higher Wheat Prices Justified

The Government is withholding from farmers between 20 and 30 cents a bushel, for five long years, on the prices the Wheat Board is receiving from the sale of Canadian wheat. We think this is not right. We think our farmers should be paid a higher price NOW.

STREET SCENE - 1946.

Government cheques come to this street every month. The Fosters, for instance—he was wounded at Vimy. Now his Veteran son is taking technical training on re-establishment grants. Other families receive Family Allowances. It's so easy—and private—to take cheques to the bank around the corner.

AN EXTRA cheque every second

You may receive Government cheques. You can cash them without charge at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada. In one year some thirty-six million cheques were issued for Family Allowances, the Armed Services, their dependents, Pensioners, employees of Crown Companies and the like. More than one for every second of the day and night!

Can you imagine the expense to taxpayers if this money had to be distributed in cash through thousands of special pay offices... and the inconvenience of having to go to such offices to get your money?

Taken in Stride

Your bank performed many such public services throughout the war and is continuing to do so. It is taking these additional tasks in stride... competent to play its part in meeting Canada's needs of the future.

Items From Bob Edwards' Inimitable "Eye Opener"

In the Calgary Eye Opener of June 6, 1914, Bob Edwards recalls the hotel rules prevailing in the N.W.T. in 1882. Rigid decorum was exacted in those days—no spitting on the ceiling, no crawling into bed with your spurs on. Turning then to the contemporary scene he considers the scarcity of appendix operations as a true evidence of money lapse. Doctors operate most freely when booms are on. No newspaperman could ever afford to get his appendix out.

Calgary Eye Opener June 6, 1914

Hotel Rules of Good Old Days
Rules at the old Macleod Hotel in the early days of the North West Territories were imposed on dogs, candles, spurs, spitting on the ceiling, and the effective system of summoning a waitress by a series of revolver shots. The list of rules rigidly enforced by the Macleod hostelry on Sept. 1, 1882, outlines the stern regime of those days.

Spiked boots and spurs must be removed at night upon retiring.

Dogs are not allowed in the bunks but may sleep underneath.

Candles, hot water and other luxuries are all extras, so are towels and soap. Towels are changed weekly. Insect powder may be purchased at the bars.

Special rates offered to gospel grinders and the gambling profesh.

Private entrance for ladies by ladder in the rear.

Baths furnished free at the river, but bathers must supply their own soap and towels.

No kicking permitted regarding quality or quantity of meals. Those who do not like the grub will get out or be put out.

Only regularly registered guests are allowed the privilege of sleeping on the barroom floor.

Guests without baggage must sleep in the adjacent vacant lot and get their meals elsewhere till baggage arrives.

Guests are forbidden to spit on the ceiling or sleep with their spurs on.

To attract attention of waiters shoot a hole through the door panel. Two shots brings ice water, three brings a deck of cards.

All guests must rise at 6 a.m. The sheets are required for table cloths.

A straight charge of $25 is made for board and $40 for board and lodging. An additional charge of $10 is made for a wooden bench to sleep on, and $20 additional for a real bed.

Fatigue Duty

It was roll-call and the sergeant was reading out the names. Finally he came to one which gave him a pause, but the next moment he roared out in his bull voice:

"Mon-taig!"

No answer.

"Mon-taig!"

No answer.

"Mon-taig!"

A pale youth stepped from the ranks. "I think you mean me, sergeant. They pronounce my name Montague."

The sergeant gave him the icy eye.

"Oh, do they? All right, Montague! Take three paces to the rear and two hours' fatigues!"

Calgary Doctors

Has anyone noticed how few operations for appendicitis are being pulled off these days? The reason of course is that people haven't got the money for such luxuries. The doctors, aware that everyone is broke, do not recommend these operations any more. They prescribe precarious pills for piebald people instead and let it go at that. During real estate and other booms, the doctors make fat fees out of surgical operations which do not seem necessary in lean years.

It is significant that newspapermen are never operated upon for appendicitis. The fee is round $250. That lets them out and is probably the reason why so many editors are still alive and kicking.

Doctors as a class are a jolly jovial lot. They roar with laughter when telling of their daily rounds, and love jokes about removing large tumors from fat women's stomachs. When a patient croaks they refer to it as "losing a patient." When they think about the fees that might have continued to come in from this patient, there is no difficulty in assuming grief.

A patient in Calgary the other day came out from under the influence of chloroform for the second time and saw the doctor once more whetting the knife. "For goodness sake Doc," he pleaded "You aren't going to chop me up any more are you I feel very empty. Don't take out all my insides. Leave a little for the love of Mike."

"Ho-ho!" laughed the doctor as he tweaked a hair from the patient's head, and tested the edge of the weapon. "That's just the point. My friend the anaesthetist who is serving you the chloroform, says I've already taken out so much that you'll fold right up if I remove any more. So we have a little bet up on it. I've already got your stomach, your appendix, your spleen and your gall. Now I'm going to have a whack at your liver. I'm betting that after I get you entirely defurnished you'll still be able to show signs of life. The anaesthetist says not. We've got a $10 bet up on it. So be still old man and take a big whiff of sleepy sleep. We want to settle this bet."

Most English Farms Rented

A survey of agriculture in England has shown that more than 65% of all farmers of England and Wales are on farms which they rent at an average annual rent of $5.40 per acre. Small farms are worth more proportionately than large farms. The average rent period of tenure is 22 years.

About 58% of the farmers are satisfied with farm house conditions, but the remainder are unsatisfied. Forty-seven per cent had piped water supply, with forty-five per cent dependent on wells.

Electricity is used on 27 per cent of farms, almost in all cases being provided from public systems as opposed to the farmers' own generators.

Three out of four farms are under 100 acres in size in contrast with the broad expanses of prairie lands farmed by Canadians. But it is significant that 44 per cent of the farms have no labor other than the farmer and his wife, while another 22 per cent only have one laborer who, in many cases, is a member of the farmer's family.

Co-operatives Are Growing

Co-operative commercial organizations in Canada in 1945 totalled 1,824 with 739,000 shareholders, according to the 14th annual survey of co-operatives prepared by the economics division of the Dominion department of agriculture.

Of the total value of business done by these organizations, $585,650,000 more than $500,000,000 was done in the sale of farm products. Among these the largest item was in grains and seeds $268,922,000. Business in livestock marketing totalled $88 millions, and in dairy products, $60.9 millions.

About 46 per cent of the grain marketed in the four western provinces was channelled through the four large grain co-operatives listed in the survey. Co-operatives handled 17 per cent of all dairy products marketed in the 1944-45 marketing period. Livestock co-operatives handled 17 per cent of all livestock marketed, eggs and poultry 12 per cent of the total; wool 47 per cent, fruits and vegetables 27 per cent, honey 21 per cent, maple products 36 per cent, tobacco 89 per cent, and grains and seeds 46 per cent.

Sales of farm products by co-operatives had increased from $144.9 millions in 1936 to $500 millions in 1945. Of the marketing products 552 are in dairy products 264 in livestock, 234 in eggs and poultry, 173 in fruits and vegetables, 10 in wool, 6 in tobacco, 5 in lumber and wood 3 in maple products 4 in honey, 2 in fur, and 30 miscellaneous.

Co-operative marketing associations with 589, and Saskatchewan has 256, Alberta 146, Manitoba 95, B.C. 87, Nova Scotia 83, New Brunswick 41, P.E.I. 25, and there are six inter-provincial.

The Dreary Grind

(From Morning Albertan)
A woman educator reports that six tons of dishes are washed each year by the average housewife. This is serious. Not so much the six tons of dishes, but the fact that they are being boiled down to hard undrinkable statistics which can undermine the morale of our housewives—if the little lady should get to worrying about them.

Most women would rather not know how many hours out of each year they spend marketing, how many miles they run the vacuum cleaner, how many buttons they sew on or how many times they send Johnny to wash his hands.

Such statistics make housework sound as dreary as tightening bolts on a production line.

Taken day by day, housework shouldn't be so bad. But fix it so every time the misadventure peels a potato she says to herself "That is one of the pounds in the ton I'll have to peel before the year is done," and housework will become plain drudgery. Then she'll start feeling sorry for herself.

Mrs. Roosevelt had something to say along this line once when she was asked how she managed to crowd so many different activities into one day. She said she thought about one job at a time and never let herself worry about what was coming next. That would probably be the philosophy of any calm, unflustered housewife.

So let's not make the women think in terms of tons of dishes. That way lies madness. Let them go on thinking in terms of kettles full and three meals a day, instead of 1,005 a year.

If the statisticians keep at it first thing we know there'll be a Housewives' Union sending briefs and delegations to Ottawa seeking a reduction in dishwashing from a six-ton to a five-ton year.

Prices for potatoes are running round $20 per ton in Southern Alberta.

"Outlaw" Cells That Form Cancer

(From High River Times)

A recent speaker in High River, under auspices of the Young Women's Association of the United Church, was Dr. Lola McLatchie of Calgary who spoke to a large group of women at the church on the subject of cancer.

Mrs. Bob Ross, leader of the Y. W.A., introduced the chief speaker, and also G. M. Pettinger, secretary of the Alberta branch of the Canadian Cancer Ass'n, who was one of the party accompanying the doctor.

Preceding Dr. McLatchie's address Mr. Pettinger commented on the splendid turnout and then quoted some figures which showed that 'decrease' in cancer deaths has been most marked among females, the death rate having declined 11 per cent from 1934 to 1944. For over 25 years before that time cancer deaths showed no decrease, if anything an increase. Credit for this decrease is given principally to the organized movement to control cancer, to educate the people, especially women, to seek diagnosis and treatment at the earliest possible moment. (Another thing too, is that all physicians and medical students are becoming "cancer conscious").

Commencing her talk, Dr. McLatchie explained that cancer is a tumor or mass of cells which have become "outlaw" and no longer conform to the laws of normal growth but multiply indefinitely. The cells reproduce their kind and spread like an invading army through the body. It could start anywhere in the body, inside or out. Some of the symptoms, that is, indications of cancer which are easily recognized are: Cracked lips which will not heal; a persistent sore on the tongue or about the face, mouth or lips; hoarseness which persists beyond the duration of a common cold; hardness or lump in the breast with no pain applicable to both sexes; difficulty in swallowing food; symptoms of indigestion; a wart or mole which for no apparent reason begins to grow rapidly; any unnatural and persistent bleeding from any orifice of the body; any comparatively sudden alteration of the usual bowel evacuation; any chronic inflammation with sustained continuous irritation.

Most of all the fact was stressed that if cancer is suspected one should not delay but consult a doctor immediately and insist on a thorough examination. For this purpose two cancer diagnostic clinics have been established in this province, one at the Holy Cross hospital, Calgary, and the other in the provincial building, Edmonton. At the close of her talk Dr. McLatchie stated that one out of every six adults over the age of 30 is marked to die of cancer unless cancer is removed.

Following the doctor's address, a film entitled "Choose to live" was shown by Len Johnson of Calgary. This gave in story form a vivid picture of family life in which diagnosis and eventual care saved the busy mother and kept the family intact.

In conclusion, after several questions had been asked, Mrs. Gray Miles thanked Dr. McLatchie for her kindness in coming to High River and giving a most enlightening talk. Before the party returned to Calgary lunch was served the visitors by several women of the church.

World Farmers In Federation

An International Federation of Agricultural Producers (IFAP) came into being on May 31, 1946, London, England, states Agriculture Abroad, the digest of agricultural policies issued by the Economics Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture. The countries which have already joined the Federation are Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Holland, India, Luxembourg, New Zealand, Norway, the United Kingdom and the United States, and other countries are expected to do so later. A resolution for the establishment of a provisional council and the formation of a permanent organization within a year have been signed by the above thirteen countries. It has also been decided that the organization will meet in full conference at least once a year.

The Federation of Agricultural Producers will advise on and assist inter-governmental action through the FAO and other international bodies. It will promote efficiency of production and marketing, and link up the action of national bodies to promote the well-being of farm people everywhere. The Federation would also carry out research and statistical analysis and promote publicity. James Turner, president of the British National Farmers' Union was elected president of the Federation, and the leaders of the Canadian, French, and Dutch delegations were elected to the three vice-presidencies.

WE'RE COFFEE DRINKERS

Canadians have hit an all-time coffee drinking high. During the first seven months of this year they imported 61,710,164 pounds. The yearly average from 1934 to 1939 was about 41 million pounds. In war years this increased and in 1945 the importation was 55 million.

A Great Starter

(Red Deer Advocate)

The first genuine farm strike ever launched on a province-wide basis in Canada, and possibly in the whole world, started on the seventh day of September, and has been carried on with various degrees of intensity ever since.

The province of Alberta has always been known as a fertile field for economic experimentation. It must be in the air or in the altitude. It was in Alberta that the farmers first took political action, elected a provincial government and sent a solid body of federal representatives to Ottawa. It was in Alberta that the Wheat Pool movement was launched, which has subsequently grown until the Pool organization is dominant in the grain business in Western Canada. It was in Alberta that the C.C.F. movement was organized, and it is has since grown to be one of the major political parties in the Dominion. It was in Alberta that the Social Credit movement was launched and swept into power as a provincial government on the promise of a monthly dividend of $25 for every bona fide adult resident of this sunny province. And now we have the farm strike.

The people of other Canadian provinces are probably amazed over the multiplicity of new ideas emanating from Alberta. More often than not they are very critical over our experiments. But it all makes for interest and excitement. We Alberta people are not "dumb, driven cattle." We like to try out new ideas, even although they may scare the living daylight out of the rest of Canada. We are a volatile people and cannot be suppressed. We live in a high, dry climate, overlooking the rest of the Dominion, and we rejoice in our freedom to do whatever we darn well please.

Beware Curious Rural Visitors

Government Issues Warning to All Keepers of Poultry. Watch Out for Men "Casing the Joint"

Very often poultry thieves work in pairs and visit the farm premises a day or several days before the actual theft takes place. The usual procedure is to drive right into the barnyard if possible. There one engages the farmer in conversation usually trying to buy some poultry, while the other busies himself looking over the premises in order to size up the possibilities.

Remember that regulations require that anyone buying your poultry must be in possession of a poultry buying license. Buying licenses are not issued to anyone who is not a licensed merchant. Therefore, these itinerant buyers cannot get a license and are buying illegally. If any person should call at your premises to buy poultry ask to see his buying license. If he can't produce a license, get his name from the side of the truck and the truck license number, and turn this information over to your nearest R.C.M.P. detachment or forward it to the Poultry Commissioner, Parliament Buildings, Edmonton. By all means do not let any strangers look over your farm premises, and if they call in pairs keep them together.

Sunspots, some as big as the earth will continue to disrupt radio for at least a year say scientists.

The U.S. army's Dreamboat plane flew 15,000 feet above the Mackenzie river basin last Friday enroute from Hawaii to Egypt on a non-stop flight. It was a test of the Arctic for air travel.

Railways Ask Increase 30% in Freight Rates

Canadian railways have applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for general advance of 30% in freight rates. Application has also been made to the W.P.T.B.

The increase is asked for all freight rates except those on coal and coke where other rates are suggested.

Rates affected by the proposed increases would include those on freight from and to United States-Canadian border points, on import and export traffic through Canadian ports moving at rates not related to rates in effect from and to United States ports, and on a number of other categories.

Perilous Position
The latter include all class and commodity rates, agreed charges, milk and cream in passenger and freight service, protective service, collection-on-delivery service, local switching charges—including inter plant and intra-plant and re-consigned switching charges, special freight trains, crane service, railway equipment on own wheels and other accessory and terminal charges.

The application also contains suggestions dealing with minimum charges, differentials and disposition of fractions.

In support of the application, the association contends that Canadian railway companies "are in the unique and perilous position that they have been operating under rigidly controlled freight rates in the face of steadily mounting costs, not merely since the adoption of price control in 1941, but since the outbreak of war."

Cost of Increases
In the first two war years, industry generally had taken full advantage of its freedom to increase prices and industrial prices and were frozen at such higher levels in December, 1931, the association added.

"Railway rates, on the other hand, have not been increased since the outbreak of war (with the exception of increases limited in their application to international through rates in effect from and to United States ports, following certain interim increases in rates granted to the United States railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission).

SATURDAY NIGHT CLOSING

(Claresholm Local Press)

A whole evening of discussion on the part of the Claresholm Retail Merchants' Association on Monday left the entire membership up in the air as well as generally convinced that certain sections of the Alberta Industrial Relations Act are positively discriminatory in their application. The point of argument arises over Saturday night shopping hours. A survey of rural public opinion here is overwhelmingly in favor of the continued Saturday night opening. The Industrial Relations Act all but prohibits such a procedure on the part of businesses which operate under hired help. Privately owned and operated businesses are not seriously affected, thus the small centres can retain their Saturday night shopping privileges, to the embarrassment of the larger set-ups. It would seem wiser to incorporate in the legislation a

Beef Agreement With Britain

All Canada Can Ship at Price
Approximately Higher Than During War Years

Hon. J. H. Gardiner, Agricultural Minister, has announced an agreement with Britain by which that country will take Canada's exportable beef from July, 1946 to the end of 1947 at a price approximately 2 cts. per pound higher than was paid during the war.

The contract further guarantees all the beef Canada can ship in 1948 at a price not lower than the highest price during the war.

Britain and Canada have signed a new beef contract providing for the purchase by Britain of a minimum of 120,000,000 pounds of Canadian beef in 1947 and a maximum of 120,000,000 pounds in 1948, agriculture department sources disclosed.

For the 1947 purchases the prices paid will be the same as those in effect since Aug. 19 this year, when rates on top quality beef were raised approximately two cents a pound, while for 1948 they will be not less than those prices in effect before Aug. 19.

Following are the present prices—those which will prevail for 1947—which the British food ministry pays the Canadian meat board for its purchases:

CARCASS WEIGHT (BONE IN) BEEF—

Choice quality Red brand $24.25 per 100 pounds; good quality Blue brand, $23.25; medium quality, $21.10.

Cow carcasses, good to choice, $19.20.

BONELESS BEEF—

Hinds, $22.50 per 100 pounds.

Fronts, $21.00.

The prices quoted are on the basis of frozen weight sold F.O.B. at Canadian seaboard.

The prices paid by the meat board to Canadian packers are based on domestic ceiling prices which vary according to the different pricing zones.

Much Poultry Goes to Britain

The first post-war shipment of Canadian dressed poultry to Britain left Montreal aboard the S.S. Manchester Progress on September 5. Consisting of seven carloads of chicken and fowl from Ontario, five from Quebec and one from Alberta, the shipment totalled 425,500 pounds.

The Special Products Board now buying all surplus Canadian fowl and chicken of specified grades for the British Ministry of Food, plans to ship several million pounds of poultry this fall. All the birds are graded, marked and packed according to Canadian government regulations.

straight clause putting all businesses in the same category—if one closes all to close. Even protective legislation requires the interjection of a semblance of common horse sense to make it workable.

What To Put In Lunch Box

"What shall we put in the lunch box?" is a question forever on the minds of rural mothers these fall mornings. How to satisfy those husky appetites, and to supply the foods needed to keep both appetites and bodies husky, and minds alert, when the noon meal has to be carried is indeed a problem. Billy is so hungry that he eats all his lunch at recess time; Jimmy is so enthusiastic about the baseball team that he can take time to eat a good lunch; Mary, pale and finicky, at all times, just picks at her lunch; teen-ager Jane won't drink milk because she is afraid she'll get fat, and her older brother Bob thinks that "only a sissy drinks milk"—and so on. Each and every mother has her own problems when it comes to packing lunch boxes for her family.

Why not get together with other mothers in the community and organize a school lunch programme, suggests Miss B. Joyce Lewis, Nutritionist for the Home Economics Division. When the children all sit down together with a hot dish to supplement their packed lunch they will enjoy the comradeship, take time to eat, and lunch boxes will be emptied.

Bulletin No. 74 "Lunch Boxes and Hot School Lunches" gives practical suggestions for planning the packed lunch, and for the organization of a hot lunch program. Your District Home Economist or the Home Economics Division of the Agricultural Extension Service Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, will be glad to send you this bulletin, to discuss your problems with you and to help you organize your school lunch program. Make a "Good School Lunch for Every Child in our Schools" the motto for your community this winter.
